

School of Journalism

THE MEDIA & AMERICAN
DEMOCRACY
INSTITUTE

About the Program The School of Journalism is pleased to partner with the Harvard Graduate School of Education in the Media and American Democracy Institute. As a leader in press performance analysis, we aim to help secondary school educators understand and teach crucial connections between press and politics – and in doing so strengthen relationships with high schools in Texas and the nation.

We welcome instructional leaders and teachers in a broad array of subjects: history, social studies, English, humanities, journalism, communication and media studies – any subject where media and press issues can be engaged.

The institute responds to concerns about declining civic awareness and participation among young people by exploring ways to effectively teach about the role of the media in a democratic society.

Application and Admission

Admission decisions are primarily based on the quality of applicants' narrative responses as well as the overall character of the class – to maximize group learning.

The application deadline is June 1, 2003.
Application forms can be downloaded from:
<http://journalism.utexas.edu/madp>.

Contact Info

The Media and American Democracy Institute
The University of Texas at Austin
School of Journalism
1 University Station A1000
Austin, Texas 78712-0113

Director

Lorraine Branham

Institute
Faculty

Stephen D. Reese

Don Heider

Mary Lee Webeck

Wayne Danielson

Andrew S. Garrison

Rodrick P. Hart

Sharon E. Jarvis

Robert W. Jensen

Maxwell McCombs

Daron R. Shaw

Bartholomew H. Sparrow

Paul J. Stekler

D. Charles Whitney

We value and affirm diverse individual, cultural and intellectual perspectives in the search for a more complete understanding of the truth.